This class examines how the history of political ideology and social conflict in France since the Middle Ages has been embodied in the urban landscape of Paris. More than in any other city, the meaning, message, and significance to state and nation of most Parisian sites was -- and continues to be -- violently contested. We will look at the histories of the conception, construction, and public perception of Parisian monuments and place their stories within the larger context of the development of the French state and of French national identity. Major events of French history form the chronological backbone for this course, with emphasis placed on the forces that literally shaped some of the city's most emblematic neighborhoods and monuments. The readings are selected from works by specialists in French political, urban, and social history; and the class will include weekly visits to sites in Paris, as the student learns to "read" architecture and to use the city as a rich primary source for historical analysis.

Be advised: while no prior knowledge of French history is required, a high level of commitment to learning about France is. All of the writing for this class demands careful consideration of both readings for class and information given during site visits. This is not a class for tourists, but a class that engages in the complex history of Paris and France. You will be evaluated on the richness and clarity of your engagement with that history. 5.0 credits. Suggested subject areas for this course: History/Sociology/Urban Studies

Goals

The overriding aim of this course is to provide students with the tools to understand and align historical moments and their attendant political and social contexts with the physical monuments that populate the contemporary Parisian urban landscape.

In order to meet this goal, the course focuses on the following topics/themes/texts:

Texts (readings are selected to expose students to the various ways history is/can be written):

- Essays by specialists in political, social, economic, and urban history
- Essays on the palette of images and symbols in monument interpretation
- News media articles addressing debates relating to global cultural centers' urban spaces

Topics/Themes:

- The Parisian urban landscape and issues of urban planning
- Political control of meaning and memory
- Paris as museum and/or living city
- Identity and Nationalism

Learning Outcomes

The course also seeks to develop students' written and oral rhetorical skills as well as their analytical skills through the following activities and assignments:

- Class discussion on readings, in which close attention is paid to both the author's style and use of evidence to support an argument
- Through in-class analysis of things like the deciphering, during "off-site visits," of political messages embedded in the iconography of monuments' façades, students are presented techniques to read visual evidence
- Writing assignments in essay-format, which are evaluated in terms of students' ability to develop a thesis and support it with well-chosen evidence, as well as coherent organization and attention to style
- An independent project requires students to select an object on display in a Parisian museum, and write an essay arguing for its inclusion in the repertoire of Parisian monuments
- To heighten their visual sensitivity, a project that sends them to the Invalides in small groups is conceived as a photo-essay

The midterm and final exams test students on their ability to effectively synthesize what they have encountered in terms of the course's major themes.

COURSE MATERIALS:

Alistair Horne, The Seven Ages of Paris.

Course reader

English-language booklets [Itinéraire readers] have been put on reserve:

The Pantheon; The Arch of Triumph; The Palais Garnier; The Eiffel Tower.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS

* Class Participation (15%) is required both in the classroom and on all of our site visits.

Students are expected to arrive on time, to remain until the end of class, to have done all the readings, and to participate both in class and during the weekly site visits.

As per the UCEAP Paris Attendance Policy, lateness and absences will adversely affect course participation grades.

Thus, "I have a plane to catch" WILL affect your grade. The meeting points for the visits are indicated below. The Class Participation component of your grade includes arriving on time to the visits. (Consult a map beforehand and do call the cell # if you are lost).

Two Monument analyses -- 2-3 typed double-spaced pages – must make the connections between 1) the lecture 2) a particular site visit, and 3) the readings. (#1=10% and #2=15%)

Pick a theme -- zero in on a topic. Your paper should absolutely NOT be a dry summary of "then we did this, then we saw that." Nor be called "paper #1:" invent a title!

Be creative! Comparison between France and other countries is welcome. Your work will be evaluated in terms of cohesiveness, logic, and originality. Start from those subjects in the syllabus, a line from one of the readings... see if you can use and make the connections between multiple sources: readings, visits, and your life.

The first one is due on Tuesday, October 3. The second should be handed in two weeks – but NO LATER -- after a visit to another site of your choosing, while your observations are still fresh. Those sent via e-mail will not be accepted. Nor are two on the day of the final.

* The Invalides "Scavenger Hunt" (ca. 6-10 pp. including photographs =10%) sends you out with 3-4 classmates to one of the most symbolic sites in Paris. You will be asked to photograph and decipher the manner in which later regimes staged Napoleon's tomb. A list of questions to consider will be distributed in class. Due October 17.

4-6 page paper: the Synecdoche Project. (15%)

A synecdoche is a figure of speech where a part serves to represent the whole, and this term could be applied to all Parisian monuments. But just what is a monument? Does it have to be a huge structure, or could it be an old machine preserved on a pedestal, a tiny painting, or the fragments of a statue?

Find one display/object at any small museum in Paris. Describe the object and place it in its larger historical and physical context [ie. if the object came from the Temple...just what was the Temple?] See what you can find out about its origins and try to imagine just why and when someone thought this thing worth preserving for us. But if you can't, use your knowledge of the city's history...and especially your imagination! Tell us how this "monument" enhances your understanding of a particular era or episode in the story of Paris. Did its meaning/significance to a Parisian viewer change over time? This is less a research paper and more of a "think piece."

Please feel free to consult me for suggestions of museums that would relate to your personal and intellectual interests.

You should submit a preliminary proposal by November 14th.

This paper is due, at the latest, by Week 11 (i.e., Nov. 28).

Note: proofreading of ALL your printed work is required! I can stay at the center after class should you need time to look over your print-out. Catch all the typos and grammatical errors you can and just write all over the typescript! Pristine printouts larded with sloppy mistakes automatically lose points i.e. the essay which repeatedly described "plagues" rather than "plaques." Written work, no matter how incisive and original, that is filled with these kinds of mistakes is guaranteed not to receive an "A." However, I would be glad to work with you on improving your writing style or overcoming difficulties with grammar. (A summary of frequent errors, easily fixed, has been included in the reader).

* Midterm (15%)

* Final (20%)

A Note on Plagiarism:

Plagiarism is a serious offense and could result in your dismissal from the program. All instances of suspected plagiarism will be reported to EAP for disciplinary action. If you borrow words or an idea from any source, whether it be a book, journal, magazine, the Internet, or a lecture, you need to indicate where the information came from. Diana Hacker's A Writer's Reference identifies three different acts that are considered plagiarism: "(1) failing to cite quotations and borrowed ideas, (2) failing to enclose borrowed language in quotation marks, and (3) failing to put summaries and paraphrases [of other texts] into your own words" (Hacker 261). (By both citing the source of this definition of plagiarism and by "enclosing borrowed language in quotation marks," this syllabus has avoided charges of plagiarism.) If you have any questions regarding plagiarism, please ask me.

A Note on Electronic Devices

As a courtesy to your instructor and fellow students, please do not use cell phones, laptops, tablets, e-readers, or other electronic devices during class, even to check the time. Make sure phones are turned off. Use of these devices will lower your participation grade. No recording (audio or visual) of class sessions will be permitted.
